

ABSTRACT

A system is provided for guiding a user in a network of pay points delivering goods or services, such as parking ticket dispensers for paying parking fees. The system includes a first means for supplying to the user information on the location of the machine (X).